PARENTS OF THOMAS SAVERY WOOD

Halifax Vital Records—Halifax Town Records—Book 111.

William Wood of Carver and Elizabeth Thompson of Halifax, Massachusetts, daughter of John[4] Thompson (John [3-2-1]) and Betty[5] Fuller (Ebenezer[4], John[3], Reverend Samuel[2], Dr. Samuel[1] Fuller) b Oct. 24, 1770, d Nov. 11, 1810, Halifax, Mass.

Dr. Susan E. Wood Crocker—Boston. 1897

William Wood removed from North or South Carolina about 1790 to Halifax, Massachusetts. He was a reed-maker by trade and a useful and industrious citizen. He was a Baptist, a denomination having at that time two or three in the town. Sectarian differences were pronounced and the Baptists cordially hated, yet Mr. Wood, although plainly avowing his principles, was of so just and equitable a temperament that his most bitter opponents could find no cause for complaint against him. On every hand, he was admired as a devout and faithful follower of Christ. After the death of his wife, (1810), he started to return to his home, and the ship on which he sailed was never heard from and undoubtedly suffered shipwreck.

William Wood of Carver and Elizabeth Thompson of Halifax lived during their entire married life in Middleboro, Massachusetts. After the birth of their youngest child, the mother being very ill, her sister, Susannah, "Aunt Susie" as she was familiarly known, went to Middleboro and brought mother and child to her home in Halifax. She went and returned on horseback, bringing mother and child on a pillow as was the custom of the day. There Elizabeth remained until her death a few months later, Nov. 11, 1810. (This account I have often heard "Aunt Susie" relate.)

3. William Thompson Wood b Jan. 16, 1871, d Feb. 22, 1871, Stockton, California.

THOMAS SAVERY WOOD's early life was sad and lonely. Born in 1808, his mother died after the birth of his brother, Nathan T. Wood. Later, his father, William Wood, returning to the family home in the Carolinas, was presumed lost at sea for the ship was never heard from. The little family was reared by relatives.

In 1833, Thomas married Elizabeth Loud Blanchard of North Abington, Mass. Epidemics raged at the time, and during an epidemic of diphtheria in 1839, he lost three little children followed by the death of his wife, July 9, 1842, Bridgewater, Massachusetts.

During the excitement following the discovery of gold in California, when many groups were being organized in Boston for the long voyage by sea, Thomas S. Wood obtained passage on the "Capitol" with Throndike Proctor, Captain. She sailed from Long Wharf, Boston, January 24, 1849, with two hundred forty-four passengers.

During the course of the voyage, the passengers threatened rebellion due to the poor condition of the food, but the excitement died down before the vessel landed at Rio de Janeiro for an eight-day provisionary stopover, leaving that port, March 18. After rounding Cape Horn, she put in at Valparaiso and sailed May 19, arriving in San Francisco Bay, July 19, 1849. When the "Capitol" finally reached San Francisco, the crew deserted the ship to join in the search for gold. Mr. Wood visited the gold fields, then settled in Stockton, where he opened a general store and sold supplies and tools to the miners going to the Mother Lode. Mr. Wood was a cabinet-maker by trade and brought his chest of tools with him from Boston. He bought thirty-three acres of land in what is now the city of Stockton, and following the gold rush, made his home on this little tract using eight wooden windmills to supply water for irrigation. The home he built there for his second wife, Elizabeth Algeo Wood (m. 1863) was destroyed by fire in 1897, having by then been the birthplace and home of his children and grandchildren. This tract was later subdivided and became known as the Brown Addition, located between Sutter and El Dorado Streets and from Wyandotte Street north to Blaine Street. The drive from old North Street (now Harding Way) to the Wood home is now marked as Wood Lane and is still in use (1970)—a one-way road, unpaved, a private drive that was deeded to the city of Stockton by Elvira J. Wood Brown, ca 1915. Stockton is built on low land and was flooded annually as the high water overflowed the sloughs and the San Joaquin River could not carry the spring flow. A common story was of the flood of 1863 when Mr. Wood went in a row boat from his home to the post office that, at that time, was located on Bridge Street, a short street near the head of Stockton Channel.

The first Christian work of record in Stockton was done by the Presbyterians when the Reverend James C. Damon preached there July 12, 1849. A second service was held shortly after. The Reverend D. C. Wheeler attempted to get a Baptist work started in December, 1849, but was uncuccessful. Another group began to hold meetings in 1850, but it was not until February, 1853, when the Reverend and Mrs. J. B. Saxton went to Stockton under the American Baptist Home Mission Society that the work became effective. On March 6, 1853, he called together the following people and organized the First Baptist church of Stockton: Madison and Eliza Walthall, James Bonzell, Della Searles, J. M. North, Ann E. Gage, B. W. Owens, Reuben Block, Newton Smith, W. W. and S. L. Webster, T. S. Wood, C. H. Woodman, Martha Merrill, J. Forsythe, and Negroes, Martha, Charles and Edward.

Thomas Savery Wood was a faithful member of this church until his death, September 27, 1897. His daughter, Elvira Jane Wood and Huron Benson Brown were married September 24, 1885, and his grandchildren were reared in this church. T. S. Wood was a member of the San Joaquin Pioneer Society, Stockton, California.

HURON B. BROWN
1857 - 1928

BROWN

Huron Benson Brown, b Sept. 7, 1857, Petaluma, California, son of Elijah Huron Brown and Mary Chamberlain Hankins (N. J.), spent most of his youth in Northern San Joaquin County, California. He, with sisters Rebecca and Ellen, attended the old Woodbridge College located west of Lodi. He moved to Stockton, California in 1880, and in 1885, married Elvira Jane Wood of that city. In the 1890's, he owned a store located at #9 North California Street, near Main Street. This was a general store that carried household items—crystal and fine china from Europe, kitchenware, toys, games, lamps of all kinds and sizes, and wheel goods. The fine china spent many months en route, carefully packed in large wooden barrels that were used as ballast in the hold of the ship. Huron was active in the First Baptist Church. He participated also in lodge work, the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, and Damon Temple, Pythian Sisters. The family lived at the old Wood home which was burned in 1897, and later, the business was sold and the family moved to a ranch in Salt Spring Valley, Calaveras County. Here they lived until that home burned in 1913 and Huron and Elvira J.(Jennie), with sons Guy and Savery, moved to Denair, Stanislaus County, where daughters, Bertha and Pearl were teaching. Huron Brown was appointed postmaster in Denair and served in that office until his death, February 28, 1928. His wife, who had been his assistant, succeeded him and served until retirement. She died September 7, 1939, at the home of her daughter, Bertha Brown Terrell, in Turlock, California. Both Huron Brown and Elvira Wood Brown are buried in the Wood plot, Stockton Rural Cemetary.

The Story of the Children's Photograph

Clarence and Bertha entered school at the same time, September, 1894, at the old Weber School on Flora Street. After school the first day, their mother took her five children to the photographer for photographs, since none had been taken since their "baby pictures." Savery's (born 1897) was taken when he was about two years old.

When the family was living in Salt Spring Valley, Calaveras County, a traveling photographer called at the ranch house seeking orders for enlargements, and after looking at the photographs of her children, assured Mrs. Brown that the photographs could be assembled into a family group, including the photograph of Savery, and placed in an oval gilt frame. Three were ordered, one for each of her daughters.

Here he met Wilhelmina Meyers, b February 7, 1892, Reynolds, Nebraska, daughter of Henry Meyers and Ida Ann Dahlstrom and they were married April 23, 1910, San Mateo, California.

Clarence became an accountant and opened his own office in Oakland and the greater part of his life was spent in the Bay area. He was Past Master of Masonic Lodge #144, Oakland, California. He and Wilhelmina were divorced and he married (2) Viola Primrose.

He was a member of Company E, 363rd Infantry, 91st Division. He was sent to Europe, wounded in the Argonne Drive, and transferred to a casual company at St. Aignon, France, where he was detained until February, 1919, then sent to Brest, England. spent in that way. She was pianist for church groups, also for lodge meetings that she attended. She was active in the Rebecca Lodge, Snelling, California, served in offices in the local lodge and as District Deputy of District #44, Merced. County.

On July 30, 1914, Ruby and Roy Frisby Gregory, son of Mansfield F. Gregory and Anna Margaret Gibson, were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Huntington, Milton, California.

Mansfield F. Gregory, son of Wellington Gregory, was born July 4, 1841, near Bingham, England. For preliminary education, he attended the academy at Derbyshire, then the College of Plymouth and College of Pas-de-Calais, France. At the age of eighteen, he came to America, spending six weeks en route. In 1859, he arrived at St. Paul, Minnesota. There, December 25, 1862, he married Anna Gibson of Pittsburgh, daughter of John and Ann (Cassidy) Gibson. They came to California and bought land on the Calaveras River in both Calaveras and San Joaquin counties near the mining town, Jenny Lind.

Because of his alert mind and education, he became a community leader and held many positions of responsibility in Calaveras County. Mansfield F. Gregory received his United States citizenship in San Andreas in 1875. He and Anna Gibson Gregory reared several children, of whom Roy Frisby Gregory was the youngest, b December 10, 1883. Roy Gregory was reared on the ranch near Jenny Lind and before his marriage to Ruby R. Brown, built their home on a bluff above the lowland orchards, a beautiful spot in the spring when the orchard below was covered with spring blossoms. Roy continued to farm there with his brother, Stockton Gregory. Roy's real interest was mining and his hobby was panning for gold in the river bottom with amazing results. A gold dredging company worked the river near Jenny Lind, and when the work there closed and the dredgers moved to Snelling, Merced County, Roy helped with moving and continued to work for the dredging company. He and Ruby moved to Snelling where he worked until the dredger closed in that area. Roy retained his interest in the ranch at Jenny Lind, now owned by his son. He passed away November 16, 1966, Lodi, California, and is buried in Rural Cemetery, Stockton, California. Ruby and Roy had one son:
